07:34:20 PM

First, using default Footnote Characters style. §

Next, trying a New style made from the Default but with an attempt to change the appearance of the footnote Characters to Outline. Ω The txt which follows is in outline form but the aachor isn't altho that is set in the FnAnchOutline.

07:43:12 PM

When a character style is defined as New using "Footnote anchor" as the basis and Outline or Shadow is set on the new style, it seems to infect previously set styles which have been set.

But if the styles in the "pre-" defined character style set are changed... note that the 07:43:12 instance ow sports a outline footote anchor.
